KIDNEY PILLS

Sold at Burke's Drug Store Believe Mr. Fansler and He Feels Better.

Burke's Drug Store.

Dear Sirs: I have suffered for over a year with kidney trouble and dropsy. My feet and legs were badly swollen at times. I could hardly walk about the house. I tried several doctors but could not get much relief until I started to use Burke's Kidney Pills. The first box helped me so much that I feel like a different man. I can recommend them to every sufferer of kidney trouble or dropsy.

neutrality by signing such a compact on United States soil.

Then begins a battle of brains in which the quickest and best wit finally wins, but not until some of the most exciting and sensational incidents that have ever been enacted before the camera are reached.

The photographic result is a feature of intense interest, filled with thrills and just the style of photoplay to suit lovers of the sensational in film entertainment.

Other especially picked photoplays are also offered.

Tomorrow and Saturday, Mae Marsh and Robert Herron will be starred in a Triangle feature, "A Child of the Paris Streets," and a Keystone comedy, "The Moonshiners," will be the added attraction.

William Russell's next big five-reeler, in the series personally supervised and presented by Samuel S. Hutchinson, is to be "The Torch Bearer," in which he appears as the millionaire owner-editor of a newspaper the watchword of which is "Clean Politics."

"The Secret of the Submarine," one of the greatest serial pictures ever produced, is being shown at the Odeon theater this afternoon and it will be continued this evening and tomorrow afternoon and evening. This is a very thrilling chapter and shows the escape of the wily Japanese Satsuma, after having been the cause of the submarine upon which Burke is demonstrating the efficiency of his new invention being flooded with water.

Friday and Saturday there will be shown a two reel picture of Charles Chaplin entitled "Police." It is a riot of fun, every foot being packed with mirth.

End Markey wears some striking new gowns in "The Phantom," the Triangle Kay Bee play in which she is presented by Thomas H. Ince as co-star with Frank Keenan. The author of this thrilling mystery drama is J. G. Hawks, of the Ince staff, and in writing it he kept in mind Miss Markey's partiality to beautiful sartorial creations. Hence, when she undertook to play the role of Avice Bereton, a millionaire's daughter, she made extensive preparations for the acquisition of an elaborate wardrobe. One of her most attractive outfits is a riding habit which she wears during the scenes that depict her in attendance at the polo matches.

The attraction at the Robinson Grand today is Norma Talmadge in "Captivating Mary Carstairs." The added attraction is another escapade of Napoleon and Sally.

Tomorrow, William Farnum will appear in "Battle of Hearts." In this production Mr. Farnum has a fight that rivals his wonderful fight in "The Spoilers."

It has remained for the Robinson

Grand to give its patrons the best entertainment they have ever had in the music line. Without any flourishing of trumpets, this was added to the program Monday and from the compliments the management has received it must have filled a long felt want, as one of the patrons remarked, "It is in keeping with your wonderful pictures, quiet, dignified and artistic." The musical feature includes xylophone and bell solos by Frank P. Hall, one of the best trap drummers ever heard in Clarksburg, either in orchestra or upon the stage.

The Shuberts and Marie Tempest have arranged for a special performance of "A Lady's Name," for the benefit of the permanently crippled soldiers of the Allies.

Miss Billie Burke in another installment of George Kleine's great serial, "Gloria's Romance," is the principal attraction at the Bijou today. "The Social Vortex" is the title of this picture. Robert Grant, an eminent authority and critic of theatrical affairs names Miss Burke as the second greatest personage in flimdom, placing ahead of her only Thomas A. Edison, to whom the world owes the motion pictures themselves. Billie Burke is not a female rival of Chaplin, nor even a rival of Mary Pickford. She is just Billie Burke, surpassing her stage triumph in her very first experience with film craft.

HOLLAND WOMEN TO BE PREPARED

For Instant Mobilization in Case of War to Keep Civil Life of Nation Going.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS) THE HAGUE, Netherlands, June 22.—The women of Holland are to be prepared for instant mobilization in case of war to keep the essential civil life of the nation going, as well as perform such service behind the lines as that of the Red Cross.

Under the scheme now drawn up, the National Woman's Council of the Netherlands is arranging for inscription offices to be opened all over the country, where all the available female labor forces can be registered and classified on the card system. It is to be left to each woman volunteer to say whether she would desire a salary or not, and whether she has any objection to transferment from one place to another, while she is entirely free in her choice of the nature of the work. As, however, there is likely to be a superabundance of offers for certain kinds of labor, the volunteer can register a second and even a third selection. No wage-paid is to be less than that earned by the man replaced; on the other hand, the woman so employed may in no case claim the place when the emergency is past.

The plan has entire approval of ministers and the commander-in-chief of land and sea forces, and the postoffice, railway and other authorities have promised their co-operation in fixing the amount and kinds of labor that would be needed in the event of mobilization. The preparatory work of the women's regimentation is already in full swing in various centers of the country.

WOMAN FORESTER.

BERLIN, June 22.—The latest masculine occupation invaded by women is that of forester, a young woman having taken that post on the estate of a count in Silesia. She fulfills all the duties of a forester, and is also overseeing the spring planting on the estate.

How Studebaker Makes a Studebaker Motor

When the final operation is completed, the shaft is a shining piece of steel. Every surface is smooth as satin. It is as accurate in all its dimensions as the finest rifle barrel, and it is now ready for the final inspector.

This man places it on a cast-steel form and slowly turns it against delicate instruments which magnify the contour of the surface many times. The slightest imperfection is easily perceptible to the eye of this expert inspector.

When Studebaker accepts the shaft Studebaker is sure that it is right. Studebaker has specified the steel; it has sampled the raw material when it entered the factory by dissolving it in chemicals, ascertaining and measuring the chemical constituents.

Samples of the shaft after it is completed are again tested to determine the quality of the heat treatment. The shaft is cut into a given place, the cross section polished, the surface of the cross section photographed from one hundred to one thousand diameters and the grain studied under the microscope.

Therefore, Studebaker makes sure that the material is right and that the finished product is right. The inspector, with his delicate apparatus, assures himself that the manufacture is right. The final result is a perfect part.

We might describe the manufacturing processes of every other part and we would find the same conditions of accuracy. Your Studebaker motor runs noiselessly—almost without vibration. It delivers a very high quota of power in ratio to fuel. It does not just happen to do this, but it does it because each part is made as carefully and as perfectly as the cam shaft.
